My Voice in America's Democracy

As ten and twelve year old's we all have the right to be like presidents. We need to start speaking clearly, not lie, discuss problems we have and talk it out with each other, be leaders, have responsibility, don't interrupt, wait our turn, listen closely, pay attention. What I'm trying to say is that we can be presidents but in our own way because we have a voice for a reason so we can speak and we need to start paying attention to information. Also could be important and that we have the right to be what we want to be!

This is about listening because we have the right to be what we want to, but we have to listen to be it. Here is stuff that we could be listening to but we don't. First we need to be aware of the news, and speeches. We need to start obeying mothers and fathers, we also need to listen to the good decisions rather than the bad. We should apologize for things that we do wrong, and there are so many more that we should be listening to. What I'm trying to say is that we need to start paying attention to things that could be important.

This part is going to be about giving things to the people that give to us. Like the doctors they save people's lives, and the homeless people, and the gifts that you get on Christmas cuz some people don't even get a Christmas, and we should be grateful for what we have and not be jealous, and mean, and rude about stuff we should just not be guilty and mesmerizing people because we don't think of all the people that just went through the hurricane and how much people died because of it. For all the thanks that they give us we should give them all the love and support that they deserve and how much people lost their family. But I'm trying to say that not a lot of people have what we have so be grateful for what you have.

This is going to be about judging. You all should know that we as children have the right to vote and that we don't need to fight over it. We could just vote from the voice we need to share around our the world who to vote for or at least explain why we are and why we would be voting for them. The government explains why you should vote for them and why they wouldn't judge you on why you picked them. They would explain the reason or why they picked you. And you are probably like why can't we do that? Well we can but with are voice and just let it go around the world and that we could share it on social media and see how much likes it gets or viewers and how much subscribers it gets and then you can share on social media why you think they agreed with you and you should get comments on why you they agreed with you so go do that but with your voice so they can only agree with your voice.
